Regenerative Medicine

Treatments using mesenchymal stem cells that promote natural regeneration, visible rejuvenation, and long-term functional health.

Mesenchymal Stem Cells (MSCs)

| Joint, capillary or facial

They are unique cells with incredible potential: they can release biological factors that support the repair and regeneration of bone, cartilage, muscle, fat, and connective tissue.

They act as activators of cellular repair. Their biological signals help reduce inflammation, stimulate tissue regeneration, and support the body's natural healing processes.

The ideal dose and method of administration will be recommended by our specialists after a medical evaluation.
